THE SAMPLER—
It hangs upon the wall beside my bed—
A curious pattern in embroidery wrought by my great-grandmother's silken thread.
And come at last down through the years to me.
A blend of pink and purple, gold and green.
In nosegays where the strangest brown bees lurk;
Verses of hymns with arabesques between.
And in the center "Sarah Jane: Her Work."
And every morning when those stitches bless
My opening eyes, I fancy she is there—
That slender, sober child in Quaker dress—
Intent upon her task to make it fair.
And as I doff my tufted counterpane, I lean to whisper, "Thank you, Sarah Jane!"
—ANNE LLOYD, in "Antiques and Amber."

Saturday afternoon in the State street Baptist church of Rockford Miss Myrtle M. Shultz and Arthur G. Keiser, popular young people, were married. The single ring ceremony was solemnized by Rev. W. C. Rutherford and witnessed by a small company of relatives. Miss Olive Kicksey and Roy Keiser, the latter a brother of the groom, attended the couple.

Just before the ceremony Mrs. Ralph McCormick sang beautifully "Oh Promise Me." Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by the groom's mother, Mrs. C. E. Keiser, as the bridal party moved up the aisle to the altar.

The bride's gown was a beautiful model of pink georgette crepe, with hat and accessories ecostume. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of pink rosebuds and sweet peas. Miss Kicksey, the bridesmaid, wore green crepe and carried rosebuds and sweet peas.

From the church the bridal party went to the Nelson hotel, where dinner was served. Covers were laid for 14 at an attractive table in the private dining room.

By Mrs. Ada B. Vail
Former Assistant U. S. Bureau of Fisheries

POMPANO

An excellent food fish, found from Cape Cod to the Gulf of Mexico, but mostly in southern waters. Other species are "Old Wife," "Round Pompano," "Permit," or "Great Pompano." On the Pacific Coast the poppy fish is misnamed pompano. It is a delicate food fish. It has bright silvery sides and bluish back. It is considered one of our best food fishes. It is not very abundant and is very expensive.

BOILED POMPANO (fat fish)
Season fish well with salt and pepper. Brush with oil and lemon juice. Place on broiler rack close to the fire to sear quickly. Turn it—sear again, and finish broiling 6 minutes on each side. It should be a golden brown. Melt 2 tablespoonsful butter—add 1 tablespoonful minced parsley, 2 tablespoonful lemon juice. Pour over fish. Garnish with parsley branches and slices of lemon—a shake of paprika and bits of pimento.
This is a simple method for broiling fat meated fish.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Palmer, assisted by Mrs. E. A. Marth, served delicious refreshments.

THE REAL PEACE AGENTS.

So long as the movement for world peace remains exclusively in the hands of the peace societies there is little to be hoped for from it. But if the bankers and business men once get hold of it we may actually see war discarded forever.

This is not said in criticism of the peace societies. Their rosters include excellent people, but a vague odor of the uplift clings to them, and inspires a cynical world with distrust.

The bankers and business men, on the other hand, have public confidence. Besides, they have power. When the world of finance and industry once sets its heart on something, that goal is usually attained.

It is interesting, therefore, to read recent remarks made by Ralph Hayes, New York banker, in addressing a group conference of eastern bankers.

Mr. Hayes took world peace as his topic, and he discussed it in the manner of a business man. He recognized that war is first of all a spiritual catastrophe, but he put his argument for peace strictly on a dollars and cents basis.

"With nearly $10,000,000,000 worth of foreign trade each year, and with more than $25,000,000,000 of foreign investments," he remarked, "every salvo our artillery fired would hit a debtor, and every bomb our airplanes dropped would kill a customer. Call that a vulgar calculation, if you will; the conquest of war is not to be achieved in terms of sweetness and light. Let us appeal to the heads and to the hearts of men and of nations, but let us not fail to appeal also to their pocketbooks."

What Mr. Hayes says, of course, is absolutely true. War is a fearful bit of economic folly. It is nearly as hard on the nation that wins as it is on the nation that loses. For that very reason it will eventually be abolished. Not because people discover that moral questions cannot be settled by force, and not because people come to realize that it is terribly wrong to indulge in mass slaughter, but simply because people find that it doesn't pay.

The pocketbook, it would seem, is mightier than the conscience.

All of this, at first, is slightly discouraging and extremely confusing. It isn't exactly pleasant to discover that we cannot take a great forward step of this kind until we find out that it is to our own selfish interests to do so. We like to think we are altruistic and noble, but this makes it look as if we are pretty calculating and grasping.

That, however, is the way the world goes. Most of the great reforms in human history have come in exactly that way. And it really needn't bother us.

For, after all, the important thing is that they do come. Any man who ever walked toward a spitting machine gun or cowered in the mud to get away from high explosive shells will not be very critical of the spirit in which such things are made impossible.

If the cold, materialistic bankers and industrialists can rid us of the curse of war, they will just about have justified their claim to world dominance.

GOVERNING OKLAHOMA.

Oklahoma has ousted its second governor in six years, and people in adjacent states must be beginning to wonder just what there is about the atmosphere of Oklahoma's state capitol building that makes it so hard for a governor to stay in it.

Johnson follows Walton into retirement, after an impeachment trial that was, to say the least, hardly edifying. One cannot help thinking that if the Oklahoma voters were to demand a little more plain speaking during the campaign they could discover the character and qualifications of a candidate earlier and save themselves considerable trouble.

However, there is this to remember; other states than Oklahoma have had highly incompetent governors, and have put up with them. Oklahoma at least does not hesitate in getting rid of hers when she finds them out.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

When Clowny called his three playmates to come up to the Thunder Gates, they stopped to think a minute. Then wee Scouty said, "Why not? If he is game to go up there, I'll follow him most anywhere. He walked upon the lightning streak and found it wasn't hot."

"So let's hop out and make the trip. Stay on the streak and do not slip. We'll leave our Goofygoos right here. He will not fly away. You see, our cabin must be saved, 'cause when we built it we all slaved. Besides we may have use for it ere night blows out this day."

"Oh, let's not walk it," Copy cried. "I would be a lot more fun to ride. We'll stay right here and tell the Goofygoos to please giddap. I'd love to go where Clowny goes, but let's be careful. Goodness knows you never can tell when you're going to fall into a trap."

The Goofygoos then spoke aloud, "I'll gladly take this happy crowd right up to good old Clowny. Then I'll skip and leave you all." Then they went, upon a ride, and landed right by Clowny's side. The trip was made real quickly 'cause it was no task at all.

The bunch jumped out, and Carpy cried, "Come on, now, let's run right inside of funny looking Thunderland before the close of day." "No, no," cried Scouty, "Not just yet. First let's tie up our big bird pet. He says if he is left alone, he'll promptly fly away."

A small cloud then rose in the sky, and very proudly said, "Now I am just the place to tie him to. I'll hold him good and tight." So round the cloud they threw the rope that held the Goofygoos. "I hope," said Carpy, "this will hold and all will be all right."

Last week four Juniors were started on their long journey to the joining of this society. All four Peg Krom, Eleanor Brenner, Helen Nutt and Clover Davis, were forced to wear bright ribbons around their right ankle, and were not allowed to speak to any male from 9:00 in the morning to 4:00 on the school ground.

I guess they all passed, and although it was terrible torture for some of them to have to remain quiet along side of their flames, they didn't falter. "Quick Cures" For Venereal Diseases False

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

One of the earliest conception of disease was that it was a punishment from the gods for sins committed by the people. This was particularly true of epidemics, and it was the custom to attempt propitiating the gods by sacrifice or to drive away the devils of diseases by making loud noises.

One of our great problems today is the control and elimination of venereal diseases. It is probable that the public has no conception of the wide spread prevalence of these diseases in all classes of society. It is a good sign for the health of the future that we are becoming more interested in these problems of social hygiene, and the prevention of cure of venereal diseases.

One obstacle to proper health education, and a very serious crime against public health today, is false advertising. This applies to the advertising of so-called cures for many different diseases, but more especially to the quick cures for venereal diseases.

FORMER PASTOR HERE PRACTICES MAGIC IN PULPIT

Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case
Subject of Story in
St. Louis Paper

The St. Louis Globe Democrat magazine section recently printed the following very interesting article concerning Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case, former pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city:

By LOUIS LA COSS

Globe-Democrat Staff Writer
Macon, Mo.—One Sunday morning about eighteen months ago, a rather astounding thing happened in the pulpit of the Presbyterian church here. Customary morning worship was in progress. The organ prelude had been played, the doxology and the invocation had been said, the Apostle's Creed recited and the reading from the Scriptures completed. The regular program then called for a five-minute talk for the children, after which they might be excused to go elsewhere as they wished while their parents listened to a sermon by Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case, the new pastor.

As the congregation with tricks of legerdemain

It was at this stage of the program that the astounding thing happened, the thing that set the church members a-flutter and started talk around town that it must be confessed, has not yet quieted down. Because—Rev. Case instead of making the usual admonitions to the young in the usual perfunctory manner, stepped into a back room and returned with a table on which reposed several boxes adorned with mysterious Chinese hieroglyphics. Placing the table beside his pulpit, and taking a wand in his hand, he announced that he proposed to do a few feats of magic, the better to illustrate the religious lesson he hoped the youngsters would carry home with them that morning.

For several minutes he made magic passes over the boxes and from them extracted live rabbits, a skull, a glass of water and other sundries. Before the astonished eyes of the children, and the grown-ups as well, he did tricks of legerdemain. And while he worked he talked, as do all magicians. The profession knows this loquacity as " patter" and the " patter" that the Rev. Case dispensed that morning was of a religious nature. The fact, he explained, that he could take a box which obviously contained nothing and merely by reaching into it with his magic wand extract live and kicking objects carried a lesson o religion with it.

"There are many things in this life," he said, "that we cannot understand. Our eyes tell us there is nothing in the box—but our eyes can also see that there are things in it. The lesson we may learn is that things are not always as they seem."

He "pattered" on for a full five minutes and then dismissed the children. It is a safe guess that Rev. Case's unusual pulpit performance was the high spot in that program of morning worship.

Rev. Case has continued to work his feats of magic in the pulpit. Perhaps the fact that he can make smoke issue from a bottle where there is no fire and that he can throw objects in the air and make them disappear before the astonished eyes of his audience, is not responsible for the almost phenomenal increase in church attendance since he became the pastor. But whether or no, it is a fact that the Macon Presbyterian Church has a large and growing membership and there is so much interest in magic that the minister has two week-day classes of boys to whom he is teaching some of the fundamental principles of the black art.

Uses Magic Consistently and Finds It Efficacious

In short, Rev. Case has invoked the aid of magic in his work as a preacher of God's gospel. He uses it consistently in his pulpit and has thus found it exceedingly efficacious in driving home lessons of religion. In no sense does he employ magic merely as an entertainment feature of his regular church program. He has no idea of making his pulpit the platform of a side-show, but he believes as sincerely in its worth as an adjunct to his preaching as he does that the church, in general, is not emphasizing enough its importance to the young folks.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, MISSOURI

He has two hobbies—magic and children. He is using the one to aid the other and if one may believe what the good citizens of Macon tell him, the Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case is highly successful both as magician and children's friend.

In many respects Rev. Case is an unusual minister. One of the best ways to illustrate the fact is by recalling that a few weeks ago the Macon Elks staged a vaudeville show. Rev. Case is an Elk and an active one, too. He willingly consented to appear on the bill and his twenty minutes of magic was probably the most roundly applauded act of the night. He is an ardent believer in athletics. In his college days he was a football player of considerable skill and he still likes to talk about the days when as left tackle he was a part of a flying wedge that brought consternation to all foes. He likes to talk about his football prowess much more than he does about his degree of Doctor of Philosophy. He likes to hear a good story and can tell one. He is a member of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. He has no quarrel with those who wish to play cards and, all in all, qualifies as an all-around good fellow whose jovial face and considerable girth indicate he lives without undue worry and enjoys his meals. This does not mean that he has relaxed from clerical dignity or is not sternly entrenched in the conservative theology which his church demands. As he describes himself, he is a "moderate fundamentalist."

Which tells his story pretty aptly. To illustrate further the leniency of the man, one might relate that the other afternoon when this writer called on him and asked him about his magic in the church, he responded by doing three tricks. The first was with poker chips, the second with a deck of cards and the third with three billiard balls. Strange paraphernalia, these for a minister to be handling and he was quick to explain that although he has used the poker chips in church, he reserves his playing cards and the billiard balls for Elks' vaudeville shows and the like.

"There are some persons to whom a playing card or a billiard ball is anathema," he said, "I can do other tricks equally useful without them, so why antagonize persons when I am not compelled to do so?"

As he juggled the ivory balls and shook poker chips out of a box, Rev. Case told how it came about that he went in for magic and now employs it in his pulpit. He disclaimed entire originality in the matter, explaining that other persons engaged in church work have at times done something similar, such as giving chalk talks and object lessons.

"Four years ago," he said, "I came across a small book, Twenty-five Tricks of Magic for 25 cents. I believe it was called. I invested a quarter and after a time was able to do a few of the simple tricks. I was in Dixon, Ill., at the time. I might say in parenthesis that I've been a pastor for fifteen years—in Montana, North Dakota, Illinois and for the past year and one-half in Macon.

"At first I did the tricks for my own amusement. Then it occurred to me that I might find a Biblical lesson in each trick, using the magic to emphasize the point I was trying to bring out. I worked along that line until now I have, as the saying goes, quite a bag of tricks, and I am of the opinion that each one of them helps the children—and their elders, as well—to remember what I have said, far better than if I merely stood on the rostrum and preached."

Rev. Case laid down the ivory balls. From the table he took a slender, elongated box with a slot along the line of its axis. He asked his visitor to examine it and be assured it contained nothing of substance. Then, into the slot he placed in succession three poker chips. The first was red, the second white and third blue.

"You saw the order in which they were placed?" he inquired. "Well, now watch! Presto!"

The box was turned ever so slightly and from the slot there emerged three poker chips, but not in the succession of red, white and blue. They came out blue, white and red.

"Of course, you know there has been manipulation of some kind," he explained. "The trick is simple, but it emphasizes effectively a Biblical lesson we all know. Which is, the first shall be last, and the last shall be first."

One may believe that when this trick is performed before the wondering eyes of a child and the pastor's "patter" carries the Biblical lesson involved, it is much more effective than if Rev. Case had conformed to strictly orthodox methods of "putting across" his thought.

There were more tricks performed in the parlor of the pastor's manse, and then he suggested that his study in the church next door be visited. Here one found a pastor's study quite as unusual as the pastor. There are, in fact, two rooms. In one there are a considerable library and such desks and filing cabinets as ministers require in the preparation of their sermons. But the adjoining room is a workshop somewhat in disarray. Here is where Rev. Case spends many hours fashioning such simple devices as he uses in his feats of legerdemain. On the shelves are bottles of chemicals which figure in the mysteries he unfolds; there is a clock that answers questions, a trunk full of thingamajigs that when properly prestidigitated perform all sorts of weird stunts, a huge silver ball, the traditional appurtenance of the crystal gazer, and a nest of Chinese boxes which one may believe are similar to those used by Wu Lung, famous Oriental necromancer.

"I am a man with two hobbies," said Rev. Case proudly. "As you may guess, magic is one of them. The other is children, and it is my belief that church should make a more definite effort to interest the young folks. And to interest them one must provide an attractive approach. By that I mean the Biblical lessons must be more or less visualized. I find that I can do it well with magic.

"For instance, take the boxes of Wu Lung. Apparently they are empty, but by waving my wand I am able to take from them baby clothes, flags, a Bible and a skull. In each there is a lesson. In my 'patter' I tell the children that some persons say there is nothing in the church, just as there is nothing in the boxes. Then I take out some baby clothes. They are typical of life itself which may be found in the church. I take out a flag. It stands for patriotism. I take out a Bible. It stands for religion. I take out a skull and it typifies death. Thus out of the empty box come life, patriotism, religion and death, all of which may be found in the church.

"I never perform a trick in church simply to be entertaining. Each trick teaches a lesson. Take this wand, for instance. By waving my hand I can command it to move about in the air at my will. Obviously, the lesson is that of obedience.

"A few months ago there was a virtual epidemic of gossiping in Macon. It became a menace. Innocent persons were in danger of losing their reputations, and I decided to make an effort to stop it. And I called on magic to help me. I advertised in the newspaper that I would preach on gossiping. I had a good attendance and the first thing on the program was to perform a trick whereby a column of smoke issued from a glass jar in which there was no fire. Of course, the lesson was that although there may be smoke, it is not necessary that there be fire. I pointed out that gossip was too frequently 'smoke without fire.' The children and the old folks caught the point."

It might be expected that there would have been some objection to his practices by certain parishioners, but Rev. Case states that from the first he has met nothing but encouragement. Originally, it was intended to make the magic merely incidental to the five-minute talk for children, but he has found that the grownups like sleight of hand as well as the youngsters. Other ministers, hearing of his success, have become interested in magic, and he is just now completing the preparation of a set of tricks with instructions on how to perform them together with the lessons in religion that may be cited for each, for use by others of his minister friends.

Pulpit magic has ceased to be an experiment in Macon. The Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case has proven its worth. He may not be a professional magician, but as a minister of the Gospel he knows more than one way to lead the erring into the fold and guide the young in the way they should go. As one of his Macon friends said, "There are tricks to all trades."

GOLF ARGOSY ON WAY TO EUROPE FOR LONG PLAY

Ryder Cup Team Leads Invasion of Golf- ers from U. S.

New York, April 10—(AP)—An American golf argosy sets sail late today on a cruise for European honors. The Ryder Cup team, led by Walter Hagen, forms the nucleus of the present invasion, of course, but there are others, both masculine and feminine, who will see what they can do in the way of upholding national prestige on foreign links.

Hagen's picked squad defends the Ryder Cup against the cream of British professionals at Leeds late this month.

Hagen, the captain, is the present British open champion; Johnny Farrell holds the National Open crown; Leo Diegel is both the Professional Golfers' Association titleholder and the Canadian Open king. Horton Smith, the "Golden Ghost," was the sensation of the winter season; the others, Al Watros, Johnny Golden, Gene Sarazen, Joe Turnesa, Al Espinosa and Ed Dudley all have been playing at top form during recent months.

Along with the Ryder Cup team will sail Bill Mehlhorn, Tommy Armour, former National Open titleholder; and George von Elm, who once held the National Amateur crown. These three, along with the whole Ryder Cup team, and Mac Donald Smith and "Long Jim" Barnes who already are in Europe, will make an effort to keep the British Open championship in American keeping.

The Mauretania also will take with it Marion Hollins and Marion Turpie, who with Glenna Collett, the women's national champion, will provide a formidable United States threat to the British women's championship at St. Andrews starting May 13.

After the Ryder Cup matches at Leeds April 26-27 the tournaments will come thick and fast. The British Open is to start at Muirfield May 3 and continue through May 11; then will come the Yorkshire Evening News tournament at Leeds, May 13-19; the French professional championship near Paris, May 19-24 and the German Open, May 25-26. The Ryder Cup team also plans a match against a picked French team at Biarritz May 28-29.

Bobby Jones' smiling face will not be seen abroad this summer.

Wisconsin Bowlers Carry Away Honors

Chicago, April 10—(AP)—Wisconsin maple trundlers carried away the largest slice of the $107,700 prize melon offered by the American Bowling Congress for its 1929 tournament.

The tournament, which attracted 13,000 bowlers and which lasted 39 days, closed last night.

A. Unke, veteran Milwaukee kneller, was the heaviest individual prize winner, collecting $300 for rolling 728 to capture the singles title and $175 for winning second place in the all-events.

Illinois was second to Wisconsin in collective winnings.

Otto Stein, Jr., of St. Louis, who topped the all events class with 1,574 pins, won $180, while the Hub Receptions of Joliet, Ill., split $1,000 for winning the five-man event with a 3,063 score. Members of the Joliet team also were awarded diamond medals.

First place in the doubles and a $500 prize fell to W. Klecz and P. Butler of Chicago, who hung up a 1,353 count.

BRITISH BAR WOMEN FROM MIXED RACES

Brooklands, England—(AP)—Women may race at Brooklands this year, but not with Major Segrave or any other man.

The Brooklands automobile racing club, which is affiliated with the Royal Automobile club, has announced that it will give every encouragement to women to race on their famous track.

"Last year was in the nature of an experimental year," said an official of the R. A. C., "women were allowed to compete in one or two races and the innovation proved so successful that the opportunities for women to race are to be extended this year."

"But we will not allow them to compete with men. Not yet."

"No doubt in the near future there will be races at Brooklands where women will compete—and probably successfully—with men, but we do not think the time is ripe for that yet."

"At various Brooklands automobile racing club meetings this year races will be arranged whenever possible, for women only."

LAUGHS from the DIAMOND

BY BILLY EVANS

"Slim Harriss, a pitcher who was different even to the spelling of his name, has finally passed from the majors. The Boston Red Sox have sent him to Minneapolis in a trade. However, Slim achieved most of his fame as a member of the Philadelphia Athletics."

After the trade that sent him to Minneapolis, someone asked Slim how he felt about going to the minors and he replied without so much as even a smile: "It will seem perfectly natural. I've been in the minors ever since I joined the Boston Red Sox."

Harriss was a colorful figure because of his size and many mannerisms that resulted from perpendicular measurements. The tallest pitcher in the majors, he measures six feet six inches, Harriss invariably afforded plenty of amusement any time he tried to field a bunt. At the bat, he was one of the reasons why President John Heydler of the National League came forward with the suggestion that all pitchers should have pinch hitters. Any time Harriss made a foul, the crowd cheered. A quiet and reserved fellow on the field, Harriss was the last player any one would pick to lose his temper and dash into the grandstand after a tormentor. But he did once in Philadelphia, shortly before he was sent to Boston.

Sensitive about his lack of batting ability, Harriss, after striking out in three attempts to bunt, was none too good company as he walked back to the Athletic bench. Twice before during the game Harriss had done the same thing.

In either case, had he been able to move the runner to second through a sacrifice, the Athletics would have won in regulation time, for a base hit followed in each instance. His inability to even bunt had forced the team into extra innings. This time it was in the twelfth inning that he again failed to carry out Connie Mack's orders to bunt. Philadelphia crowds, a bit critical as everywhere, had taken him to task for each of the three failures.

"Say, Harriss, how do you manage to make a living in the winter?" asked a fan who was thoroughly disgusted at the way he was making a go of it in the summer. Harriss was only a short distance from the bench when that remark was shot at him. He was peeved and glanced in the direction of his detractor.

"That big bum! Get wise!" answered his neighbor. "He's a model in a macaroni factory."

Everyone laughed but Slim. He proceeded to leap over the low railing in front of the grandstand and make for the fan who dared refer to his physique as a model for a macaroni factory.

Princeton, N. J.—(AP)—When Jack Roeser entered Princeton last fall he had a hard time swimming the 100 yards requirement of all prospective students.

Nevertheless Roeser chose swimming as his athletic activity. He became one of the best performers on the Tiger freshman team and now Coach Howard Stepp rates him as one of his best tank prospects.

PAT MALONE

To believe that a pitcher who last year won 18 games while losing only 13 would do better this year might be asking a great deal, but Pat Malone, with the Chicago Cubs, has been showing such splendid form in exhibition games this spring that the Cubs expect him to better that record this summer. Malone's fine mound work gives McCarthy confidence that his club will be the pennant winners.

Treated Like An Orphan

Many of the American Association baseball writers are puzzled because the Detroit Tigers let Johnny Neum slip away from their possession during the winter months.

One of the puzzled ones is Dick Meade, columnist on the Toledo News-Bee and former president of the Toledo Hens.

Meade, after watching Neum in spring training, writes this:

"When the Detroit management requested waivers on Neum in the winter, it was the idea of President Navin and Manager Bucky Harris that Johnny's lingering appendix illness removed the will to play major league baseball. The Tigers were planning on assigning Harry Heilmann to first base, had closed with Toronto for Dale Alexander, and had drafted Bud Brannan from Louisville."

"As the situation is now presented, Brannan is going back to Louisville soon. Heilmann is slow, too fat and too scrawny for the job and Alexander, while a corking hitter, is a dud as a fielder. The Detroit people might have suspected the present outlook in December, yet they did not hesitate to send Neum away."

"I am ten pounds heavier than I ever have been and I am stronger than at any time in my career. I've feet trouble you get a box of Healo.

"I have always felt that Johnny was too good a man to step out of the majors unless something was wrong with him. I put up my idea to Neum and his happy smile quickly disarmed any suspicion that he was unwell."

"I'm not only in good health," he replied, "but I actually feel better than I have in three or four years. Probably my appendix trouble was working on me for some time before I realized what the trouble was. Two weeks after the operation last summer I felt a new man."

ASK THREE HIGH SCHOOLS TO JOIN R. R. CONFERENCE

DeKalb, Belvidere, Savanna Teams Sought in H. S. Loop

The Rock River High School Conference has extended an invitation to the DeKalb, Belvidere and Savanna high schools to come into the conference, and a meeting of representatives of the high schools now affiliated with the conference will be held here Monday evening, April 22, to receive the replies to these invitations, and at that time the basketball schedule for next season will also be considered.

The addition of the DeKalb, Belvidere and Savanna high schools would increase competition in every branch of athletics and would undoubtedly create more interest in the events than now exists.

Springfield, Ill., April 10—(AP)—Opponents of horse racing in Illinois have launched another attack. Representative G. W. Blackwell, Chicago, has introduced a bill in the House, which would set the season from May 1 to November 1 and would limit the season on any one track to 45 days.

ACTIVE SUMMER AHEAD FOR DETROIT BOXING

Detroit —(AP)—Boxing bouts aplenty will be Detroit's share during the coming summer if the plans of some of the leading promoters, including no less a personage than Jack Dempsey, do not miscarry.

The management of Olympia arena presided over by Dick Dunn, has taken a lease on Navin field, Detroit's baseball park, the terms of which give it the exclusive right to stage outdoor boxing contests at the park.

At the same time Dempsey, with Floyd Fitzsimmons, is understood to have taken options on land in the outskirts to be the site of an arena. Dempsey's plans, however, appear to hinge somewhat upon the action of the Michigan legislature on a proposal to authorize 15-round bouts.

The Sophomore Was Evanston Student

Evanston, Ill., April 9—(AP)—It was a pretty good joke, at that; just what might be expected of a prankish sophomore.

The sophomore, if such he were, found an arrest book which Officer Horace Hart of the Evanston police force had lost. The fun-loving Collegian immediately got busy filling out arrest slips for Northwestern University professors, doctors, business men, prominent citizens—almost anyone who drove a car. He saw that the arrest slips got to his quarters. Then, no doubt, he retired to his quarters and laughed and laughed.

Came a new day, and a flock of professors, doctors, business men, prominent citizens appeared at the police station in various stages of anger. It was an outrage; a blankety this and a blankety that.

It was no joke to them, even when it was explained, but it must have been very, very funny to the sophomore.

Radio-Wire Merger Thought Prohibited

Washington, April 9—(AP)—Administration officials have reached the opinion that the proposed union of the Radio Corporation of America Communications, Inc., with the International Telephone & Telegraph Company is prohibited by the last radio law and is a matter that must go to Congress.

The proposed merger was announced several weeks ago although the Davis radio law specifically prohibits any combination of wire and radio companies. It was said at the time that it was not felt by officials of the two companies that the outright purchase of the Radio Corporation's communication system would come under the provisions of the radio act.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.
No griping is the "keynote" of these little, sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.
If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

NEWS of the CHURCHES

CHURCH OF GOD

Sunday evening ended a series of meetings which have been conducted by Bro. Marsh, at the Church of God on West Morgan St. Much interest was shown in the able and interesting discourses during the week. A class of young people expressed their desire to accept Christ, through the act of baptism, which will be arranged for in the near future.

Using Rev. 21:1-8 for a scriptural lesson, Bro. Marsh chose for his sermon, "Through Gates of Glory," the final consummation of the life of Jesus and the conditions of this world. Psalms 30:4-5 "Sing unto the Lord, O ye saints of his, and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness." For his anger endureth but a moment; in his favour is life: weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." More fitting words cannot be found to express the deliverance of God's people. Eccl. 3:1-3-4, "To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose, under the heaven; a time to kill and a time to heal, a time to break down, and a time to build up; a time to weep and a time to laugh, a time to mourn and a time to dance." In the study of Daniel's vision, we have a picture of war, with all its attendant suffering. Tonight I am going to present a different picture, one bright in the fulfillment of hopes and promises of righteousness, so much in contrast to the picture of sin, misery and death.

A dark and gloomy picture is the time of Jacob's trouble, which is coming on the earth. We must know and realize this, so that we can be warned and prepare to escape. This will be a future in which there will be a time to weep, but now let us dwell on a more pleasant thought, when that time has passed, and the time of joy arrives, those joys and blessings that we may share in if we are worthy.

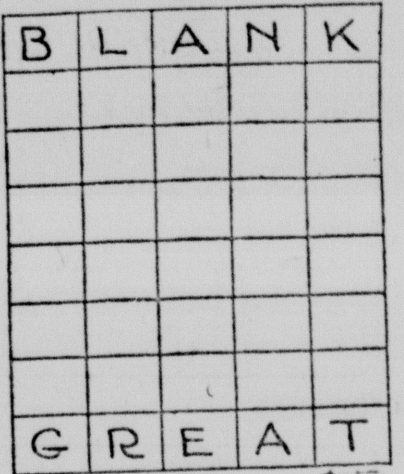

I once saw the lake, dark and dreadful looking, under the somber clouds, with the winds lashing the waves in fury; and to my mind it brought a picture of the darkness and turmoil over the earth. As I gazed over the sullen water, suddenly a change occurred, the clouds parted and a shining beam of sunlight shown across the lake, turning the waters to wondrous beauty and radiance. To my mind it seemed an illustration of the change that will come over the earth, dark under its cloud of sin and suffering, and then to be made bright and glorious, where the heavens reveal the Son of God, coming with love and righteousness in his hands for the needy world. The earth made new with nothing to mar its perfect beauty. "Behold I make all things new."

Every great truth, relative to the salvation of man, has been impressed on the mind of mankind since the beginning of time, and through the scriptures God has revealed himself and his wonderful plan of redemption. The coming of Jesus, the beginning of the golden age of light, when love will rule, no more war, pain, suffering, death conquered, and the gift of immortality and eternal life for man. Of old all races and nations looked forward to a better golden age. We now look forward with the same hope, and call it the millennium of our Lord, the thousand years of the reign of Christ on this earth. I Cor. 15:25-26, "For he must reign until he has put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." God had planted this hope in the hearts of his people all down through the ages, and clear is the nature and time of this hope set forth in the revelations made to John through God. Once more let us go for a moment to the picture of Jacob's tribulation, which will take place just before the visible appearance of Jesus. Before this trouble happens, the bride of Christ, will have been taken out, so as to escape this trouble. The Jews assembled in their own land have prospered and acquired the wealth of the world. They have succeeded and became so great in wealth and prosperity that all other nations look at them with longing, envious eyes, and soon this condition brings a state of war, and we find all nations assembled against Jerusalem. These nations will not only try to obtain the wealth of the Jews, but will also try to utterly destroy them from the earth; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." This was the final purpose for which Jesus was born, to be King over all, as he himself told Pilate in John 18:37 "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world." In Acts 3:19-21 comes the promise of the future. "Repent ye therefore and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you." How much is expressed in these two phrases, refreshing and restitution. How much this old earth, under the curse of sin and death needs the times of refreshing and restitution by God. The world tonight stands in need of God's help and the establishment of his rule and authority. God is now taking out a people for his name to help Jesus in his work of redemption. Acts 15:14 "Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name." This is the work of the church now, to prepare a people for Jesus, to be worthy to meet him, and help him in his work, which he must finish when he returns to the earth. "Go to all and he that believeth shall be saved." Jesus will return again to rebuild the tabernacle of David. The conversion of the world will not be in this age, but will come later. God has a place for us all in his plan of salvation. If we will only give ourselves to him, in the future reign of Christ, it will not be a time of idleness but one of loving service, co-workers with Christ. O the infinite riches of God's plan, not that we should have these blessings for our own pleasure, but through our service the residue of man should seek and serve God. 1 Tim. 2:4 "Who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth." Today we strive to take out a people for his name, tomorrow for the conversion of the world and nations. And what blessings will follow the return of Jesus. The world needs so badly a King like Jesus, one who understands and knows the heart and judges all accordingly in perfect justice and love. Can you imagine the result of such a rulership? Surely it will bring a time of righteousness, peace and loving brotherhood. No more danger from crime, war or death. Isaiah 2:4, "And he shall judge among the nations and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks, nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Surely it is looking through the gates of glory to picture this wonderful future. Only God can accomplish it, never through the efforts of man could such a time be experienced. WATER GOLF

ACHIEVE GREATNESS
You may be a BLANK, but you can become GREAT easily, today's puzzle proves. Par is seven and one solution is on page 9.

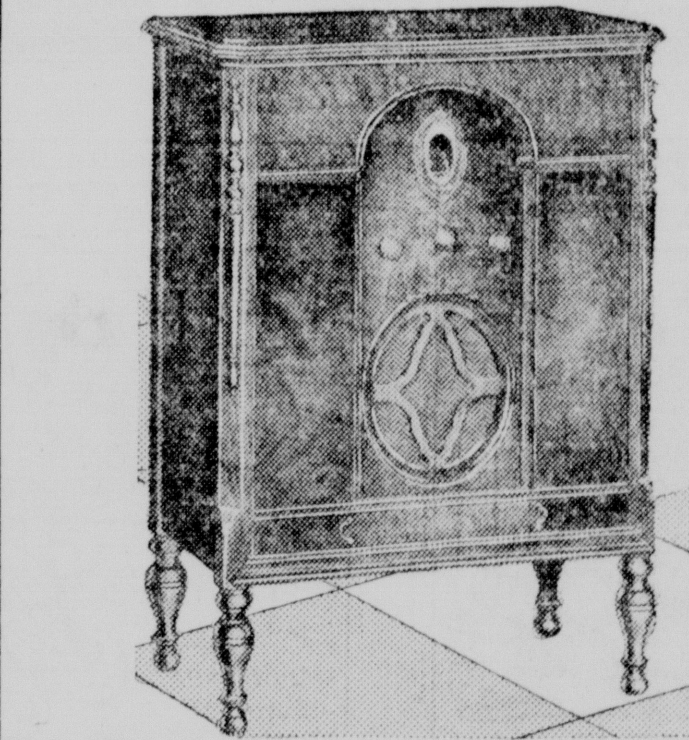

THE RULES
1.—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, is three strokes. COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2.—You can change only one letter at a time.
3.—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each pump along words and abbreviations don't count.
4.—The order of letters cannot be changed.
One solution is printed on page 9.

the greatest struggle of warfare ever known on the earth will take place. Then will the Lord appear with his saints, when his feet will rest on Mt. Olivet and the mountain will break asunder with a great earthquake. In Jude 14-15 "Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all."

The purpose of Jesus when he comes is to judge all men. Acts 17:30-31 "And the times of this ignorance God winked at; But now commandeth all men everywhere to repent: Because he hath appointed a day, in which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead."

Let us look back two thousand years ago, an angel appeared to Mary and said Luke 1:30, 31, 32 "And behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: And he shall reign

The front of the cabinet acts as a sounding board and gives out both high or low notes. With a rich true value Dynamic speakers properly installed in wood cabinets bring out a soft and mellow tone that cannot be found in metal or table model speakers.

We will gladly demonstrate and show you the difference in Dynamic speakers that are built into wood cabinets and those in metal.

Compton—Over sixty plates were served at the father and son's banquet, held in the M. E. church parlors last Friday evening. Rev. H. H. Hammett, district superintendent from De Kalb delivered a very interesting talk on the settling of the northwest. He was well acquainted with the ways, and mode of living in this spacious country, having lived his entire childhood with his parents, who were among the early pioneers in that section of the country. After the banquet, Rev. Hutchinson presented the last number of the M. E. Lyceum course. The Boy-Scouts were special guests at the program, about twenty Scouts were present to enjoy the program. Dave Browning, who has been here from Muscatine, Ia., left for his home Monday, having spent the week here with his wife, Mrs. Nettie Browning, who has been caring for her aged mother, Mrs. Mary J. Nelson since winter.

The remains of Glenn Clemmons was laid to rest in the family lot in Brooklyn cemetery Friday afternoon, April 5. Services were held at the M. E. church here at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. A very impressive sermon was conducted by Rev. Warren Hutchinson. Six friends of Glenn's were pallbearers: Rex Bradshaw, R. M. Carnahan, John Swope, Dale Beemer, Wellington Swope and Wilbur Swope.

Friday evening, April 12, at 8 o'clock, "Crooks for a Month," a three act comedy will be presented at the Compton opera house for benefit of the new high school and grade building that will be built here on site of the old building, this summer.

The cast includes: James Bentwood, a worried real estate man; Harlo Olson, Fosdick, his salesman; Win. Archer, Winfield Bentwood, Bentwood's resourceful son; Walter Archer

Doris Bentwood, his equally resourceful daughter; Helen Butler, Mrs. Bentwood, his wife Velda Burley, Jack York, Winfield's chum, with bright ideas; Leslie G. Archer, Marty Copping, another crony; Arthur Chaon, Eunice Cassels, friend of Doris; Hilda Fields, also friend of Doris.

Specialties between acts have been announced which will include song and dance numbers by high school and grade children. Those who will appear are Wellington Chaon, Beatrice Chaon, John Elliott Guinnip, Paul Kessler, Jr., Robert Cook, Virginia Ogilvie, Vera Cook, Max Burley, Dorothy Gilmore, Gwendolyn Rhoades, Isadore Kaufman, Roy Mireley, Louis Beemer, Jaunita July. Also Mr. Parker and his orchestra from Paw Park will furnish the music before the curtain. Directors of the play have been working hard and expect to present one of the best entertainments ever produced at the Compton opera house. Don't miss this, as your presence will mean a boost for the new high school building.

"HAD LOST HOPE FOR RELIEF THE GLY-CAS GAVE"

Not Day's Work in 12 Months Before, Mr. Chelf Says, But Health is Restored Now.

"It has been years since I felt as well as I do now and I don't believe there's a medicine anywhere to equal Gly-Cas—it positively brings relief where all the others fail," Mr. Robert Chelf, 709 E. Fifth St., Muscatine, Iowa, recently said.

"For over a year I had not worked because of awful stomach and bowel troubles," he continued. "I could eat only light foods and this constant lack of nourishment had struck at the very root of my health. For months I had been taking treatment, but without anything reaching my case and I was going along with a continual pain and soreness across my bowels, resorting to laxatives for the only bowel action I could get and I didn't know what to do. But in a few weeks this Gly-Cas has done more for me than everything else I had used before. I soon began to have more normal elimination and I knew my stomach was acting differently and I've honestly improved."

if you could see me eat—actually any food I want without a sign of the old ailments, such as the awful gas formations, burning feeling and other misery in my stomach. Gly-Cas just put me on my feet again—it's the only medicine that did it—and has given me relief that I had come to believe was simply hopeless for me."

Gly-Cas is sold in Dixon at the Campbell White Cross Pharmacy, Sold Franklin Grove, G. S. Ives, Polo, C. R. Clothier, Ashton, G. R. Charters, Amboy, Aschenbrenner Drug, Compton, W. H. Hills, Rochelle, Barker & Sullivan and by leading druggists in all surrounding towns.—Adv.

Colchester Man Is Slain By Bootleg Rival, Police Say

Colchester, Ill., April 9.—(AP)—Police today hunted Joseph Moon, alleged bootlegger rival of Kelly Wagle, who was shot to death last night in front of the city hall. Wagle was driving slowly along the street when a second machine pulled alongside and its occupants opened fire. The assassins' car sped away, headed toward McComb.

Moon, police said, was suspected of a similar attack on Wagle several months ago, in which the latter suffered minor gunshot wounds.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE, stenographer at the Judson Hotel, has her fox fur stolen from her in a crowd but STEPHEN ARMSTRONG catches the thief and returns the scarf. He asks to take her home. Not wishing to seem ungrateful, she invites him to dinner.

Their evening is spoiled when PAMELA JUDSON, daughter of her employer, phones Mildred to return to duty. Stephen escorts her to the hotel where Pamela recognizes him as the salesman who had sold her a car. She snubs Mildred and tries to lure Stephen away by pretending she wants to buy another car. Then she meets HUCK CONNOR, who becomes infatuated with her, and she amuses herself by playing with both men.

When Stephen favors Mildred the manager asks her to be careful or Pamela will have her discharged. But this may not be so easy as her brother, HAROLD, is in love with Mildred. He is a weakling and Mildred permits him to call to keep him from Huck's gambling crowd. However, he suspects that she cares more for Stephen than for him and refuses to stay one evening when he calls. As the weeks pass Mildred realizes that Harold is becoming hopelessly involved with Huck's gamblers and that Pamela is winning Stephen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIV

I came to Mildred as a distinct shock that Harold was looking like a ghost. She'd been too greatly preoccupied with her own troubles to notice the change in him before it became pronounced.

But one day he stopped at her desk as usual and started his unending plea for a date and Mildred saw that the hand he put over the sheet of paper in her typewriter to make her stop working was decidedly unsteady.

She looked up at him then in swift alarm. His face confirmed her fear that something was wrong with him. There were shadows around his sunken eyes and his skin was devoid of color. But it was the haunted, desperate expression of his eyes that startled her.

"Harold," she cried, and then hastily lowered her voice. "What is the matter?"

Harold was surprised, taken off his guard. "Noth—ing," he stammered. "What do you mean?"

"The way you look!" Mildred exclaimed. "Has anything happened to you?"

Harold regained his poise. "Nothing has happened to me," he said doggedly, "except that I'm in a fever over you, as always. If you've any desire to help me let's have dinner together tonight and"

Mildred put a hand on his arm in an entreating gesture. "You'd better see a doctor," she said pleadingly. "You look terrible."

Harold covered her hand with one of his own. "You're all the medicine I need," he declared. "If you'd give me a chance to tell you how I love you, Mildred."

"Please, Harold. People are looking."

"Let 'em look. Unless you're afraid Stephen Armistage might happen along and get an eyeful," he said caustically.

"Don't be absurd," Mildred retorted—too quickly. "Still thrilling to that poor animal cracker's love song, are you?" Harold pressed, made unpleasant with his biting jealousy. "Well, from all the observation posts I've occupied, it looks like he's picked a balcony close to the dear old home sweet home for his love scenes. Thought he had better judgment. Nothing but a Johnny, after all, trailing a girl like Pam."

"YOU'RE her brother," Mildred reminded him sharply. "All the better to know her," Harold asserted. "But I'm not criticizing Pam. She can't help it if her aura is golden and"

When Harold looked at her again, Mildred saw that the haunted expression had returned to his face. Huck had nodded a brief greeting and gone on without pausing in his stride.

He never came to Mildred's desk any more. In a heated argument with Harold, during which the boy had alternately threatened and begged, Huck had learned that Mildred suspected him—had suspected him from the first.

HAROLD had not mentioned Huck to Mildred after that, and when she herself brought the man's name into the conversation he was evasive. Mildred, absorbed in her own unhappiness, had not kept herself informed upon Huck's activities in the hotel.

She saw him frequently with Pamela, but so far as she knew, Pamela never went out with him alone. They danced together in the hotel and Huck often dined with Pamela. If Harold chanced to be present he sat and glowered at Huck with hopeless venom, but Mildred knew nothing of that.

Pamela knew that Harold had turned against Huck for some reason—he would not say why—but she made light of it, and of her brother's halfhearted orders to keep away from Connor.

But Mildred was not thinking entirely of herself at the moment. Harold's expression revealed his hatred and his terror of Huck. Her mind, already half-filled with concern for the boy, instantly associated Huck with the change in him. But she was too sensible to let Harold know she had discovered even that much.

stickily. A man ought to know better than to get caught in it."

Mildred smiled wickedly. "But you spread the same lure in my way," she pointed out. "You'd buy what you want, too, if you could."

"Right! If you can't love me I'd rather have you love my gold than fall for someone else. And I'm glad to hear you say you think Pam has bought her man. Knowing you, I'm sure you won't continue to think much of him."

"I didn't say anything of the kind!" But maybe I do think she would if she could."

"Then you believe Armistage loves her for herself alone?" Mildred made a sudden, broken gesture. "Let's not talk about it," she said weakly.

She sat down again in her desk chair and Harold leaned over her while she furtively wiped her eyes.

"I'm sorry," he said penitently, "and I honestly hope Pam will give him the gate, but I can't help loving you, Mildred. I know you won't have me just because my dad's money could make things easier for you, but that's no reason why you should refuse to have anything to do with me. We could have a good time while we're being miserable."

Mildred tried to laugh and choked instead. Poor Harold. Well, at least he was braver than she. She looked up at him, about to say she would accept the invitation, when she saw that he had taken his eyes from her face and had fixed them upon the elegant figure of Huck Connor who was just passing.

When Harold looked at her again, Mildred saw that the haunted expression had returned to his face. Huck had nodded a brief greeting and gone on without pausing in his stride.

PEDRICKS

Why is it that in practically every town you will find that PEDRICK HEAT SHAPED RINGS are being used more and more every day? Why is it that the majority of cars a year or more old in and around DIXON have PEDRICKS in them and that PEDRICKS are giving a satisfaction that no other piston rings give?

PLENTY OF REASONS!

PEDRICKS are HEAT SHAPED and do not lose their tension. PEDRICKS will stop excessive amount of oil used. PEDRICKS will give a motor more power and pep. PEDRICKS will deliver far more miles of service than others. PEDRICKS will stop crank case dilution which means better lubrication. PEDRICKS are low priced piston rings with features that no other rings have. Think this over. Why have the same kind of piston rings installed in your motor that caused you trouble. Tell your repair man that you WANT PEDRICKS and nothing else but PEDRICKS.

to give the motoring public immediate advantage of HUPMOBILE'S new expansion program

Early in January HUPMOBILE acquired a new plant in Cleveland, comprising more than a million square feet of modern and advanced automotive manufacturing facilities.

This was the first step in HUPMOBILE'S 1929 program of expansion, giving HUPMOBILE a doubled production capacity for its famous Century cars.

Now comes the second step; that of passing along to the public the economies which HUPMOBILE'S extended production plans make feasible.

These price reductions embrace all models in the 1929 HUPMOBILE Century Six and Eight lines and range from $55.00 to $260.00.

Consistently, for more than twenty years, HUPMOBILE has won and held its public by fine motor car quality at notably low prices.

But today, in this new schedule of prices, HUPMOBILE excels itself in value-giving.
